Note to the Reader.

THE compilation of the present index was commenced several years ago, and has proved a longer and more tedious task than at the outset was anticipated. It was at first intended to include only changes of name effected under the royal sign manual, or by the authority of a private act of parliament. But so many changes have been effected irregularly within the last half century, that it was thought it would be a matter of some practical utility if they also could be included, even though they were without authority, and this accordingly has been done, though it has somewhat delayed the completion of the index, and added in no small degree to the labour of compiling it. But if it adds to the utility of the index, the compilers will be fully satisfied.

The sources from which this index has been compiled are several. Primarily it is based on the Changes of Name by Royal licence. For this purpose the volumes of the London Gazette, and also the Dublin Gazette from 1760 to 1901 were examined, but it must be remembered that not all Royal licences are advertised in the Gazettes, though the vast majority are so advertised for obvious reasons of convenience, and often also in the "Times" and other newspapers. Registration at Heralds' College only, is a sufficient compliance with the Royal licence granted.

Next, this list comprises those names changed under the authority of Private Acts of Parliament, a method now but little resorted to. In this list they, as a rule, are indicated simply by the usual references of year of the reign and chapter by which such Acts are usually referred to, but occasionally also the reference to the Index to Private Acts of Parliament is also quoted.

The next class are those changes made, suo motu, without any licence or Act of Parliament, and these, which are usually evidenced by deeds poll and simple advertisement, have been taken chiefly from the columns of the "Times," though, as this method of irregular change did not become frequent till somewhat less than 50 years ago, it was not thought necessary to search the "Times" before the year 1861. These changes are indicated by the word "Times," and the date of issue, and when accompanied by a deed poll, that fact is indicated by the initials d.p. Some changes are not advertised in the "Times," and these it has not been found practical to include with any degree of completeness, but when they have come under notice, they have always been inserted, though unfortunately, as in some cases they are taken from small collections of change of name advertisements, in which the source was not always given, it has not been found possible to indicate in every case the newspaper in which the advertisement appeared.

Some few also are included which have not even been advertised, and the authority for these rests on information given to the Editors, though they have not included any such, unless satisfied that they have been in permanent use.

With these irregular changes it has been thought well, for the sake of identification, to give nearly all particulars which are stated in the advertisements. So much more information than could be given in an Index like this is, may be obtained from the Heralds' Office, that in the cases of Royal licence changes, it has been thought best merely to supply the reference and the initials of the Christian names.

Besides the changes just referred to, there are those Scottish ones recorded in the Registers of the Lord Lyon, in Edinburgh, and the Irish changes noted in Ulsters Office in Dublin. The latter are advertised in the Dublin Gazette, just as in England they appear in the London Gazette. In some cases they appear in both Gazettes. In addition to the regular changes entered in Ulster Office, there is there a short list of various irregular changes noted by a former Ulster, W. Betham, and distinguished in this Index under his name.

It may be noted that very considerable help may be derived by the genealogist from changes of name made in pursuance of a Royal licence. By the terms of the licence such changes have to be entered at Heralds' College. In the greater number of cases it will be found that pedigrees have been consequently recorded there, and in the majority of cases, a grant of Arms has been made to the person effecting a change of name. Often, too, in the London Gazette, and also in the Dublin Gazette, the advertisements themselves contain a short recital of the pedigree, or the reason for the change. Less information is obtainable from irregular changes, and in not a few cases the advertiser does not even trouble to supply his address, or gives merely a temporary one.

In consulting this Index the following points must be noted:—

It is primarily an Index to names adopted thus:

Smith: Jones, A. 6 June, 1810 (1461)

means: Smith, adopted by A. Jones, under a Royal licence dated 6 June, 1810; advertised on page 1461 of the London Gazette for 1810.

The name discarded is also indexed with a cross reference thus:

Jones see Smith.

No particulars are given under the entry of the discarded name. Cases in which the Christian name, or its equivalent is altered, are indexed only once, and that under the surname.

When merely a date appears, the reader will understand that such an entry relates to an irregular change, for which the compilers are unable to give precise authority, though they are satisfied that such a change did actually take place. In most cases this lack of authority arises from their having been obtained from some newspaper cutting to which the reference has not been attached.

The figures within parenthesis following a simple date relate to the London Gazette. Before the year 1785, the figures indicate the several numbers of the Gazette itself; from that date onwards the Gazette is paged consecutively for each year, and thenceforward these figures indicate the page of the Gazette.

The dates following names indicate, as a general rule, the date of the Royal licence; in irregular cases they refer to the date of the "Times" in which the advertisement was first published: occasionally it may be found that they indicate the date of the deed poll.

The following contractions have been made use of:—

- Betham = a list made by W. Betham, Ulster, about 1810.
- con. = continue the name of
- com. = commonly.
- D.C. = Dublin Castle.
- D.G. = Dublin Gazette.
- d. p. = deed poll.
- Lyon = Lyon Register, Edinburgh.
- L.G. = London Gazette.
- R.L. = Royal Licence.
- St. J. = St. James.
- W. Wll. or Whll. = Whitehall.

Various other contractions have also been adopted which will cause the reader no difficulty.

Finally, it is requisite to express our obligations for help given in the compilation of this index, without which it would have been still less complete than it is.

The late Garter King of Arms, Sir Albert Woods, K.C.B., had formed a large collection of irregular changes of name which he courteously placed at the Compilers' service, and aided in the work by his advice, whilst his colleague, Mr. G. E. Cokayne, Clarenceux King of Arms, also allowed his collection of changes to be made use of for this index. Sir James Balfour Paul, Lord Lyon, supplied the references in Lyon's Register, and Sir Arthur Vicars, Ulster King of Arms, supplied a list of Irish changes, whilst both the last-named scanned many of the proof sheets as regards other changes with which they are officially concerned. In Ireland too, the help of Mr. Burtchael, of Ulster's Office, must be acknowledged; and thanks are due to others who have occasionally added some changes which would otherwise have escaped notice.

This list of changes of name, large as it is, and it has proved far larger than the Editors ever anticipated, is by no means complete. Not only is it certain that many changes, regular and irregular, are not recorded, but no attempt has been made to deal with those made before the first year of George III.

The Compilers' having in view the issue hereafter of a supplement, will be glad to have note of any changes made before 1760, whether regular or informal. In the latter case the fullest particulars should be given, and the authority should be carefully stated. And in these changes may be included the cases of aliases which are found in wills of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, many of which seem to have been the ancient equivalent of our modern "double-barrelled" names.

Lastly, as it is certain that in an index now for the first time compiled, and dealing with so large a number of facts, there must of necessity be errors and omissions, any corrections will be specially valued, and when received will be carefully noted for inclusion in the proposed supplement.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF CHANGE OF NAME.

From early times various persons have found it necessary or desirable to change the name or names by which they have been known. Of recent years, that is during the past half-century, the practice of thus altering the personal designation appears to have much increased. Obviously for this there is more than one cause. Some are directed to change their names on succeeding to property under a will or a settlement with the view of perpetuating the memory of some family which has become extinct in the male line, and for them it is compulsory. Others assume a fresh surname on their own initiative for a similar reason or as a mark of respect to some distinguished or favourite ancestor. Yet another class adopt the same course in order to escape the disadvantage of some frequent* or it may be offensive appellation, while others effect such changes from mere whim. Lastly there are those whose past history has been so evil that a change of name becomes a necessity, either to enable them to effect a reformation in their life's history, or, it may be more frequently, to allow them to continue their evil course with less risk of detection. With this last class it is unnecessary to deal and further they do not willingly leave any record of their change of name, and such record as there may be is preserved only in the law courts.

It will be seen that changes of name, unless brought about by mere whim or worse, are usually made for motives which can only be regarded as praiseworthy, and it is perhaps to a consciousness of this that the number of such changes has in recent years somewhat increased.

During the last one hundred and fifty years several thousands of families, principally in the upper and well-to-do classes of society, have by one way or another changed their names, so that the subject is obviously of very considerable importance from a genealogical point of view. These changes indicate the existence in very many cases of a pedigree registered at Heralds' College, and not infrequently the grant of a coat of arms.

* Sometimes, as in Wales is very noticeable, an insufficient number and variety of surnames may be a considerable inconvenience. This, in Denmark, was so obvious that the Government of that country in 1903 proposed a law empowering Danes to change their names. It was stated that in Copenhagen one person in ten bore the name Hansen, while Petersen and Sorensen are almost as common. In one commune it was alleged that there are only twenty different surnames amongst some 20,000 inhabitants.

Changes of name were formerly almost, if not entirely, confined to the surname, but of recent years there have been very many instances of attempting the change also of the Christian or personal name. How such changes should be effected, if it is possible to effect them, is a subject which has been very hotly debated, but before considering the legality of any particular view it may be as well to consider very briefly the origin and nature of personal nomenclature in this Kingdom.

Anciently, but at very early date, individuals were distinguished merely by the single name given to them in their baptism, and to the present day the Church, in its catechism and marriage service, entirely ignores the surname and recognizes merely the name acquired in baptism. The inconvenience of a single name and the obvious difficulty of distinguishing individuals early led to the adoption of some surname or soubriquet by which one man might be known from another. How early such surnames were adopted it is not easy to say, nor can we precisely fix the time when they became hereditary. The convenience of the practice was obvious and for a very long period surnames, in this country, have been universal, with the sole exception of the present Royal family, which possesses no permanent general family surname and uses the name of baptism only.

It would be out of place here to enter into a long dissertation of the etymology and origin of surnames. It will suffice to indicate the principal classes into which they may be divided. These are :—

1 Patronymics.—Derived from the personal name of some remote ancestor. These again may be sub-divided into :—

(a) Paleo-patronymics.—Derived from personal names chiefly in use before the Norman Conquest, e.g., Wigg, Froude, Orme, Finn, etc. They are mostly monosyllabic in form.

(b) Neo-patronymics.—These are later than the Conquest. They are distinguished in England by the suffix son, often contracted into s, such as Johnson and Jones, Williamson and Williams, or represented in Norman-French by the prefix Fitz as in FitzGerald, FitzRoy, in Wales by ap or P as in ap Rice and ap Owen, which become Price and Bowen, in Scotland by the prefix Mac as in MacDonald, also variously written as McDonald, M'Donald, or Macdonald, and in Ireland by the prefix O as in O'Brien.

2 Topographical.—Dividing into:—

(a) Surnames from villages, towns and districts, as Clifton, Buckingham, Wiltshire.

(b) Surnames from local features, as Wood, Hill, Dale, Combe, Atwood, Athill, Agate, Twells, Bythesea.

3 Occupational.—Such as Smith, Archdeacon, Priest, Carpenter, Draper.

4 Nicknames.—Such as Blount, Whitlock, Gifford, Strong-ith'arm, Armstrong.

And contractions, diminutives and misspellings have further produced an infinite variety of surnames, many of which even by the experienced can scarcely be traced to their origin.

The nature of the change effected varies very considerably. As regards those by Royal Licence there appear to be but three forms. In the simplest the name taken is "in lieu and instead of" the original patronymic. Thus John Brown, who adopts the name of Smith "in lieu and instead of" being John Brown, becomes simply John Smith. In many of the earlier notices in the London Gazette the license is simply expressed "to assume the name of," thus leaving it uncertain whether it is in addition to or in lieu of the original surname. If the license permits him to adopt Smith in addition to and after his own he becomes John Brown-Smith: if it be as a prefix then in such an instance he is John Smith-Brown. It is usual when two names are adopted to connect them by a hyphen, though for this custom there does not appear to be any distinct authority. When the surnames thus conjoined are more than monosyllables the result is inconvenient, and obviously in many cases it becomes impossible to address the individuals by their composite names, and in such cases the last name to all practical purposes becomes the surname, and indeed in heraldic practice becomes the principal surname, for when a person bearing a double surname is entitled to arms in respect of both names the arms of the last are always put in the first or principal quarter of his shield. Sometimes the owner of a double name assumes a third and even a fourth name, when the result may become almost grotesque. Thus the Thurlow family first became Hovell-Thurlow and afterwards adopted two more names, thus acquiring the cumbrous designation of Hovell-Thurlow-Cumming-Bruce.

The fact that some surnames are so frequent as in some cases to almost cease to be a means of identification is a very great inducement to alter or add to a surname for distinction's sake, and very often a man's neighbour will do this for him if he possesses a distinctive Christian name which readily blends with his surname. Thus John Stanley Brown will be addressed as Mr. Stanley-Brown. Indeed some such change becomes from reasons of convenience almost a necessity. Even on the judicial bench the newspapers have made us familiar with Mr. Justice Gorell Barnes and Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, though neither of those learned judges appear to be entitled to the distinction, if such it be, of a "double-barrelled" name.

Thus again the possession of a grotesque or even offensive surname is another inducement to change, as may be seen by glancing through this index, for of such names there are unfortunately too many. Such names are often a positive detriment to their bearers and a man may well be excused for effecting a change by the best means available, even though the formal and preferable method of a Royal licence for one reason or another may not be open to him.

There are also name changes which are dictated by a mere vanity and sometimes by vanity coupled with ignorance. Of these the most common examples are the assumption of the prefix de or le, or the sanctification of a name by prefixing to it St. Except in the case of foreigners recently settled in England the use of de as a prefix can only be regarded as a foolish affectation. The assumption of de was perhaps more frequent in the first half of last century and was no doubt a consequence of the so-called medieval revival. Often too a change is effected by adopting some obsolete or fanciful spelling of a name. Perhaps the most remarkable instance of this is to be found amongst the Smiths. An Essex baronet of that name adopted the grotesque form of Smijth, presumably in ignorance of the fact that what he took to be "ij" in old documents was merely the letter "y," which at one time was written with two dots. A little knowledge of paleography would have saved him from rendering his family name permanently ridiculous. Of a similar nature is the odd use of "ff" instead of the capital "F," on which some people appear to pride themselves, in ignorance of the fact that double "ff" is merely an obsolete form of writing the capital. Such trivialities are much to be deprecated; they are inaccurate and what is worse give needless trouble to other people, who fear that they may cause offence if they address a letter to Mrs. Foulkes instead of Mrs. ffoulkes.

It will be of interest to note the number of those who assume or discard some of the more frequent surnames. Thus of those bearing the surname Smith, some 73 entirely discarded it, while 93 modified it by affixing or prefixing some other surname to that patronymic. A prefix seems to be the more popular method of differencing, as we find some 57 adopting prefixes as against 36 who added other names. The total of those who discarded or modified Smith is 166. In the case of the next most common name, Jones—115 discarded or modified it, while only 6 assumed it, which may indicate that Smith, though the commoner, is the more popular name. The proportions in the case of Brown or Browne, which it is needless to distinguish here, are very different; 83, exactly half that of the Smiths, discard or modify it, but in 19 instances it is assumed, though if the proportion found with the Smiths were followed there would be but eight. Of Taylors, 37 discard or modify the name, whilst nine assume it. In the case of the two Welsh names of frequent occurrence, Davies or Davis and Williams, there are 40 in each instance who discard their patronymic, whilst there are but three instances of assumption of Davis and five of Williams. It is thus plain that the desire of getting rid of common surnames leads to such being discarded with a greater frequency than they are adopted.

The simple canons adopted for changes by license are by no means adhered to in irregular changes. Persons making these irregular changes will without hesitation convert one of their Christian names into the new surname, merely dropping their proper surname, or conjoin them with a hyphen; they will wholly alter their Christian name, or it may be, add a new Christian name or change their positions; occasionally a new name is constructed out of the same letters as the old one consists of.

A few examples may now be given:—

Sir Henry Hoghton becomes Sir Henry de Hoghton, 1863.

John Ely Fisher became St. John Ely Viviane, 1863.

Philip Lybbe Powys became Philip Lybbe Powys Lybbe, 1863.

David Richard Jones became David Richard St. Paul, 1862.

Abraham Solomans became Alfred Phillips, 1862.

Shirt became Hirst, 1820.

Henry Hollingworth Wells Beman became Henry Beman Wells, 1862.

This gentleman advertized that he took the surname of Wells in lieu of Beman, but made no remark as to his Christian names, though it will be seen that he dropped two of them and adopted his late surname as a Christian one.

Nathan Norton Laventhall became Norton Nathan Laventhal Lonsdale, 1863.

Here the first names were transposed and a new surname added but not hyphenated. It may be assumed that this family, presumably a foreign one, is now known as Lonsdale only.

Vere Jones became Vere Jones Vere, 1863.

This was a singular case as Vere Jones was the infant son of Thomas J. Jones, who apparently did not change his own name.

John Joseph Deadman became John Joseph Dedman, 1864.

This is a change of spelling made for obvious reason.

Albert Henry Benson O'Fflahertie became Albert Henry Benson de Vere, 1864.

Robert William Scoble became Robert William Scobell, 1864.

Here is a change of spelling in order to cast the accent on the last syllable, for that method of pronunciation by many is regarded as the more fashionable one.

Edward FitzGerald Galaher became Edward Fitzgerald, 1864.

Here the surname is simply dropped and the Christian name became the new surname.

Henry Perkins Wolrige became Henry Gordon Wolrige, 1864.

Here, "by reason of succession to an estate." he drops Perkins and assumes instead the surname of Gordon—apparently he does not treat it as a "double" name. He afterwards became Henry Wolrige Gordon by Royal licence in 1873.

Charles Reed Driver became Charles Reed de la Bere, 1864.

He "resumes" his "ancient family surname"—a strange misuse of the the word "resume." It might be imagined that he formerly bore the name de la Bere, but such was not the case. It is evidently the name of some remote (presumed) ancestor.

A desire to conceal racial origin produces many changes. The motive in these cases doubtless varies. Some may be ashamed of their origin; others find it merely inconvenient in business to appear as foreigners, or do not desire to appear singular amongst their neighbours. By a few the process is reversed for obvious purpose of deception, as when the Irish singer Foley called himself Signor Foli with the evident object of inducing the public to think that he was an Italian vocalist.

Jews, Germans, Russians and Irish* are especially prone to this weakness, but it may be remarked that this is not so much the case with Frenchmen and Italians. Genealogically it may be noted that a certain prestige appears to attach to surnames of French origin, which is not the case with others. Doubtless this is due to the still existing influence of the Norman Conquest upon our family history.

If we take as an example the distinctively Jewish name of Moses we find that fourteen discarded the name entirely while three others added English surnames as hyphenated additions. It might have been thought that those who possess names of the antiquity of the Jewish patriarchs would have been proud thereof and would have been reluctant to replace them by others of comparatively modern origin, but such does not appear to be the case.

What is perhaps the best known change of name is that of Bug to Howard. In the Times of 26 June, 1862, appeared the following advertisement:—

I, NORFOLK HOWARD, heretofore called and known by the name of Joshua Bug, late of Epsom in the County of Surrey, now of Wakefield in the County of York and Landlord of the Swan Tavern in the same County, do hereby give notice that on the 20th day of this present day of June, for and on behalf of myself and my heirs lawfully begotten, I did wholly ABANDON the use of the SURNAME of BUG and ASSUMED, took and used, and am determined at all times hereafter in all writings, actions, dealings, matters and things, and upon all other occasions whatsoever to be distinguished, to subscribe, to be called and known by the name of NORFOLK HOWARD only. I further refer all whom it may concern to the deed poll under my hand and seal declaring that I choose to renounce the use of the surname of Bug and that I assume in lieu thereof the above surname of Norfolk Howard, and also declaring my determination upon all occasions whatsoever to be called and distinguished exclusively by the said surname of Norfolk Howard, duly enrolled by me in the High Court of Chancery. Dated this 23rd day of June, 1862.

NORFOLK HOWARD, late Joshua Bug.

Some uncertainty, however, is attached to the example for it has been alleged that the advertisement was merely a jeu d'esprit of a well-known genealogist who wished to cast ridicule upon the method, then coming into fashion, of attempting to effect a change of surname by means of a deed poll, coupled with a newspaper advertisement.

* The recrudescence of local national feeling has tended to arrest a change that some years ago was silently taking effect with names possessing the distinctively Irish prefix O. This was in process of disuse, and so O'Donovan became simply Donovan. At the present time the tendency is to resume the use of this prefix.

The most familiar change of name is that which daily takes place on marriage, when the newly-married wife wholly discards her maiden surname and assumes that of her husband. So complete is this change in England, so completely is the wife's individuality absorbed by the husband's family, that in genealogical inquiries it frequently proves to be a matter of extreme difficulty, often an impossibility, to identify the wives in a pedigree. This obliteration of the wife's identity is the natural outcome of the old theory of English law that her personality by marriage became absorbed or merged in that of her husband. The inconvenience of this obliteration of the woman's maiden surname has become very evident in modern times, especially with women who become authors or engage in business or professional life. Literary women have sought to obviate the inconvenience in a variety of ways. One is that of adopting the husband's surname as an addition, as in the case of the famous American writer, Harriet Beecher, who after her marriage became known as Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, a useful innovation, to which the only objection is that it is not always clear that the second name may not be merely a baptismal or given name. This difficulty, however, might be and often is obviated to some extent by the use of a hyphen, as Mrs. Harriet Beecher-Stowe. Other feminine authors retain for literary purposes their maiden name on a title page, adding their married description in brackets or smaller type below. By others the process is reversed. They appear on the title as Mrs. John Smith, while their maiden name follows in brackets. On the stage the reverse is the case and the actress as a rule, even though married, prefers to retain her original or adopted name in preference to using that of her husband. Both actors and actresses as a rule, it may be said, adopt a stage name, a custom arising doubtless from the disrepute long attaching to the occupation of the play actor.

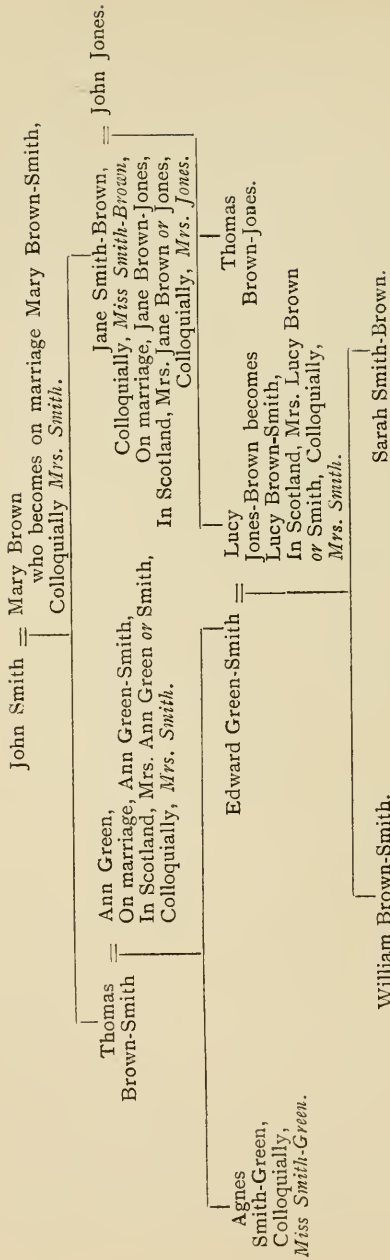

The obliteration of the maiden name has the great inconvenience in genealogical inquiries of rendering it almost impossible to trace for any long period ancestry in the female line. Logically, it would seem reasonable in working out a pedigree to trace not merely the paternal line, i.e., the father's father or grandfather, and so on, but also the maternal line, i.e., the mother, grandmother, and so on in the female line. What, however, a man usually means when he tells one that he has worked out his wife's pedigree or his mother's, is that he has traced their paternal ancestry in the male line, and indeed the obstacles to tracing out a true maternal line are in England almost insurmountable, as obviously the surname must change with each generation that the pedigree is carried back.

This difficulty is not felt to the same degree in Scotland, where, owing to the reasonable practice of women retaining for all legal purposes their own original name but adding that of their husband as an alias, the history of the wife's family may be traced back with a fulness which is rarely feasible in England. Miss Jean MacNabb on her marriage to Donald Douglas becomes for legal purposes Mrs. Jean MacNabb or Douglas, though socially, as in England, she is addressed as Mrs. Douglas. On her tombstone she will be described as "Jean MacNabb spouse of Donald Douglas." It cannot be doubted that in the way of dealing with the surnames of women the Scotch practice is better than that which obtains in England. In Ireland the practice as to women's surnames after marriage varies or has varied from both the English and Scottish practice. Thus a post-nuptial settlement of 1751, relating to a Wicklow family, describes the lady as Catherine Finnemore, alias Ussher, the last being her maiden surname. Though this practice is clearer than the English style, yet it must be regarded as inferior in convenience to the method followed in Scotland. It is akin to the custom at one time observed in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, which, in its calendars of wills, adds a woman's maiden name as an alias to her married style.

It is a matter for surprise that this question does not appear to have been touched on by those who have interested themselves in removing the various artificial disabilities to which women have been, and still are, in many respects, subjected.

That the identity of the wife should disappear so completely as it does in England must be regarded not merely as a petty grievance but as a serious inconvenience, and it would be no small advantage were the right of a woman to retain her own name through life for all legal purposes definitely recognised and established. Such a practice would not interfere with the convenient social practice by which a married woman is addressed by her husband's name. That name she would adopt, as a matter of course, during the continuance of the marriage bond and also during widowhood as an addition or suffix to her own. Thus Miss Mary Brown on her marriage to Mr. John Smith would become, formally, Mrs. Brown-Smith, though she would be colloquially addressed as Mrs. Smith.

It would be a further advantageous reform, though it may, to some, seem a most revolutionary proposal, if it became customary for the daughters of a family to use their mother's maiden name as their own principal surname, which they could differentiate by prefixing to it their father's surname. Thus the daughter of Mrs. Brown-Smith would be styled Miss Jane Smith-Brown, just as the son might be styled Mr. Thomas Brown-Smith. On her marriage to Mr. John Jones, Miss Smith-Brown would become Mrs. Brown-Jones, thus dropping her paternal surname and emphasizing, as is suitable for a woman, the female line instead of, as at present, absolutely ignoring her mother's family.

Such a scheme of family nomenclature is outlined in the pedigree opposite, which gives the suggested legal name of each individual with the social style added in italics.

Whether a hyphen should be used or the alternative or or alias is obviously a point of minor importance. By a system of conjoined names the identity of individuals and families would be preserved and without the slightest difficulty it would be possible to trace maternal ancestry. At the present time, as we have seen, owing to the imperfection of our system of nomenclature this, save in very rare cases, unfortunately cannot be done. The female ancestry is as full of interest and as worthy of investigation as is the paternal line, which unfortunately, as a rule, alone attracts the attention of the genealogist.

But to the rule that women change their name on marriage or re-marriage there appears to be one exception, which if it does not receive formal acknowledgment is tacitly acquiesced in by "society," when the exception is claimed by the lady making it. The exception occurs in the case when a lady has acquired a title by marriage and subsequently makes a second marriage with a commoner. Legally, of course, she loses the precedence obtained from her first husband and, logically, she should discard the title and name acquired from him.

Too frequently a foolish feminine vanity prevents the adoption of a course which every consideration of propriety and commonsense would dictate, and she prefers to retain a style to which she is no longer entitled and which in some cases should be even distasteful to her. This subject underwent considerable discussion in the Cowley case in 1901.* Earl Cowley had been divorced on the petition of his wife who, after she had obtained a dissolution of the marriage, continued to style herself Countess Cowley. It is difficult to understand the state of mind of any lady who would wish to continue a style derived from a guilty husband whom she had divorced, but in the uncertainty that attaches to the status and style of a divorced lady its use by her may be excused. But on her re-marriage such an excuse no longer exists, as she then by custom becomes entitled to her new husband's name. Nevertheless the ex-Countess Cowley insisted upon the retention of that title and continued so to describe herself after she had re-married and become the wife of a commoner. Thereupon her former husband, Earl Cowley, gave notice of motion to restrain her from using the style or title of "Countess Cowley." This motion was made in the Probate Divorce and Admiralty Division and purported to be in the Divorce proceedings, but it was treated, at the suggestion of the judge, Barnes, J., as a motion in an action in the High Court to restrain the respondent from the use of the title. The application was granted by Barnes, J. Countess Cowley then appealed and the Court of Appeal reversed that decision; Earl Cowley thereupon appealed to the House of Lords, sitting as Court of Appeal, the Lords present being the Lord Chancellor, Lord MacNaughten, Lord James of Hereford, Lord Brampton, and Lord Lindley. Considered judgments were delivered by four of those peers. The substance of these judgments was that being a matter of a dignity it was not a case for a court of law but for a committee of privileges of the House of Lords, and that the Divorce Court had no jurisdiction to deal with it. Lord Lindley pointed out that the controversy between the parties was reduced to a dispute about the use of a name as distinguished from a dignity, and he laid down the proposition that "speaking generally the law of this country allows any person to assume and use any name, provided its use is not calculated to deceive and to inflict pecuniary loss."

In the result the House of Lords dismissed the appeal, thus confirming the view of the Court of Appeal which had reversed the decision of Barnes, J. The judgments appear to have admitted that the lady, at any rate after her re-marriage to a commoner, lost any right she had in the title, though it would seem that till that event she retained all of the peculiar rights and privileges attaching to the wife of a peer. The headnote of the case runs thus: "When the marriage of a peer has been dissolved by decree at the instance of the wife, and she afterwards on marrying a commoner, continues to use the title she acquired by her first marriage, she does not thereby, though having no legal right to the user, commit such a legal wrong against her former husband, or so affect his enjoyment of the incorporeal hereditaments he possesses in his title, as to entitle him in the absence of malice to an injunction to restrain her use of the title. Only the House of Lords can try questions of right in matters of peerage or questions concerned therewith."

But it must be noted that these judgments make it quite clear that the lady had no legal right to the style of Countess Cowley after her re-marriage.

As to changes of Christian name, it is laid down very positively in the various text books that no means exist whereby a name given at baptism can be varied save, it is usual to add, at confirmation by the Bishop. This latter method, at any rate in the Anglican Church, is practically obsolete, though a few years ago the late Bishop of Liverpool confirmed a lady adding her mother's surname as an additional Christian name. But the Roman Church still retains the custom of giving a new name at confirmation.

It does not appear to have been considered what is the position of persons not members of a Christian church who obviously have no Christian names, or even what is the position of a Baptist, who acquires his first name without any ceremony. Indeed there does not appear to be any obligation upon a parent to give his child any name at all. A Jew or Mahomedan British subject who may be domiciled in England is, clearly, as regards his names, to be considered from another standpoint than that of a Christian, and it may be presumed that there is no reason why he should not change both his name and his surname, or whatever may be the equivalent of a man's personal appellation.*

Under the Registration Act of 1837 the birth of a child may be registered without the entry of any personal name, the sex only being indicated, though it is open to the parents to record it subsequently in the books of the Registrar General. Evidently a child could grow to adult age without having had any personal name formally conferred, and thus it would seem evident that any name afterwards used by such a person would be one of repute only and could be altered at will. Indeed any question as to the name of such an individual would be a question of fact. There would appear to be nothing to hinder such a person from having any indefinite number of aliases.

In cases of illegitimacy a person has no surname except that which he acquires by use or reputation. In England it is usual for such to adopt the mother's name, but the Crown will, with the assent of the putative father, grant a license for assuming his name. In Ireland the custom is different and there a child takes his father's surname, a course which may render it difficult to distinguish the legitimate and illegitimate lines of a pedigree, though it has the advantage that it does not punish the children for the parents' fault.

In 1862 very considerable discussion took place both in and out of Parliament on the subject of changes of name in connection with the Jones-Herbert case. There was settled in the county of Monmouth at Llanarth and Clytha a family of the name of Jones whose ancestors, it would appear, had once used the surname of Herbert and were descended from the same stock as the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke and Carnarvon. In 1848 Mr. John Jones of Llanarth, who was afterwards sheriff of his county, obtained the Royal License for changing his name to Herbert. It may be presumed that he was chiefly moved thereto by a natural desire to discard a somewhat homely and frequent surname in favour of one more euphonious and infrequent, and probably to emphasize his undoubted, though very remote, kinship to the various ennobled families of Herbert. The pedigree which Mr. William (Jones) Herbert published in justification of the change shows that his paternal ancestors had borne the name of Jones for eight generations and that some four or five hundred years had passed by since any of them were known by the name of Herbert. Both Herbert and Jones are merely patronymics and in origin the one is no more distinguished than the other. This Mr. Herbert had married the only child of the late Lord Llanover, better known as Benjamin Hall, M.P. for Marylebone, who in his capacity of Lord-Lieutenant of his county afterwards raised the discussion by his refusal to recognise the change from Jones to Herbert made without Royal License by another member of the family of Jones. It was in 1861 that Mr. William Jones of Clytha, uncle of Mr. John Herbert, late Jones, of Llanarth, actuated, it may be assumed, by the same reasons as had in 1848 moved his nephew, adopted the ancestral name of Herbert in lieu of the obnoxious one of Jones. Mr. William Herbert, late Jones, of Clytha, like his nephew, applied for a Royal License. It was indeed suggested at a later date that the application to the Home Office had been refused, but he appears to have gone no further in his application than to consult one of the heralds, and that as the opinion was somewhat hostile to his proposal he dropped that procedure and ultimately effected the change without obtaining the accustomed permission for the purpose. Probably this unauthorized change, of local and personal interest only, would have passed unnoticed had not Lord Llanover, as Lord-Lieutenant of Monmouthshire, declined to permit Mr. Herbert of Clytha to qualify for the magistracy in his new name or to grant a Commission in the Militia to the son in any name but that of Jones. It might have been thought that Lord Llanover in such a matter would have preferred to see the near relatives of his son-in-law bearing the same name and would have assisted them as far as lay in his power. It is evident that he held strong views to the contrary. Whether it was due to any personal feeling or to an exaggerated view of his duties as Lord-

* Presumably the same reasoning must apply to the first names of Baptist children, at least so long as they remain unbaptized.

Lieutenant it is perhaps not very material now to inquire. However, it was Lord Llanover who raised the question of Mr. Herbert of Clytha's right to change his name in the way he did, he corresponded upon the matter with various officials, including the Home Secretary and the Chancellor, and took the course of publishing the letter in the newspapers in order to defend, despite the annoyance it would cause to a near connexion, the view he enunciated—"that it was his duty as Lord-Lieutenant of the County to preserve intact the prerogative of the Queen, who can alone sanction and legalize a change of name."

In consequence of his persistent refusal to recognise Mr. William Herbert or his son under any other than their "real" name of Jones, or to recommend the son for a commission in the Militia, the subject was at last brought to the notice of the House of Commons, by Mr. Roebuck, in the form of an address for a return from the Home Office of the names of all persons who had applied for licences to change their names since 1850; "of the instances in which such licences have been granted during that period, together with a statement of the names of the successful applicants and of the names which they have been permitted to assume by Royal Licence; of the names of the persons so applying who have been refused during the same period, with the reasons assigned in each case for the refusal; of the principles by which the Home Office is guided in granting and refusing such licences, and of the amount of fees demanded for such licences since 1850, and the manner in which the moneys received have been applied." To this motion, which was seconded by Col. Clifford, the Secretary of State, Sir George Grey, replied. After stating that Mr. Jones of Clytha had not applied for a Royal Licence, he said: "The hon. and learned gentleman (Mr. Roebuck) says there is no doubt that any person may assume any name he chooses without Royal Licence. Now I am not going to dispute the legal question. I believe there is no legal right to a name. Any person may take any name he pleases, but it does not follow that everybody else will at once recognise him by that name. It is by no means a matter of course, because a gentleman who has hitherto been known as Jones suddenly calls himself Herbert or any other name that whim may direct, that all the world will immediately acquiesce to the alteration. In short, this is rather a question of fact than of law. A man's name is that by which he is generally known. How he may have acquired it does not matter. It is his name and he has the right to be called by it if it is the name which he usually receives amongst his friends and acquaintances . . . As to the principle by which the Home Office has been guided in dealing with these applications I have to inform my hon. and learned friend that there is no written law on the subject.

About 200 years ago the practice of applying for permission to change names arose, and in 1783, in consequence of the frequency of these requests, it was deemed necessary to put some check on them. A regulation was therefore made that all cases should be referred to the College of Arms. That reference, however, is not necessarily decisive, as it is intended only for the information of the department. That usage has been universally adopted, subject to the modification introduced by Sir Robert Peel that when there are no plausible grounds for an application, and it is obviously the result of mere whim or caprice, it should be at once declined without any reference to the College of Arms, leaving it to the applicant to exercise the right which the hon. and learned gentleman said all possessed of changing his name on his own responsibility."

The Home Secretary further stated that he was willing to make returns of the number of applications which have been made and the number which have been rejected, and to give every information as to the fees which are paid over to the fee fund. This was, under protest, agreed to by Mr. Roebuck.

The Solicitor General (Sir Roundell Palmer) added that to the best of his belief there was no positive law on the subject. The fact was that surnames grew up mostly as nicknames. That very origin showed that there was no positive law on the subject. It was a matter of usage and reputation from the beginning, the name clung to the man and the law permitted him to shuffle it off if he could. There was no law forbidding a man to change his name, but there was also no law which compelled his neighbours to acknowledge him under the name he might assume When, however, by usage a man had acquired a name by reputation those persons in public authority were obliged to acknowledge this new surname. There was, however, no principle of law that any person occupying an official position was bound to recognise a capricious or arbitrary assumption of names by persons who had no right to them either by descent or by the requirements of property.

In 1862 Mr. Thomas Falconer, a County Court Judge, brother-in-law to Mr. Roebuck, published a pamphlet "On Surnames and the Rules of Law affecting their Change," and a second edition of it in the same year with comments on the Jones-Herbert case. This last extended to 88 pages, and the following year, 1863, appeared a "Supplement with Appendix," filling 42 pages more. In reply to this was issued in the same year, anonymously, "An Answer to Mr. Falconer on the Assumption of Surnames without Royal Licence." This contained some 90 pages and dealt with "The Gradual Establishment of English Surnames." "The Clytha Case," Mr. Falconer's "Conclusions and Suggestions" while the correspondence and other papers in the Clytha case, were issued as a Parliamentary paper, and also reprinted as a pamphlet of 40 pages. Mr. William Herbert, late Jones, also issued a short statement, with pedigree and arms, in explanation of his action; an article appeared on "The Law of Proper Names" in the Herald and Genealogist, also another in the same magazine on "Changes of Surname proprio motu," while the Cornhill printed a paper on "Surnames and Arms," which also was the outcome of the Clytha case. Added to this was a considerable correspondence in the newspapers, all illustrating the interest which is invariably taken in any subject which is in any way of a personal nature. Recently the subject has been subjected to fresh consideration in the pages of the Genealogical Magazine in 1901, in which the view that any change is illegal, except with the licence of the Crown, is put forth, and much learning on the subject is there collected together.

To summarize the subject of change of surnames. There are two opposing views. The advocates of the one aver that change of name without the Royal Licence or Act of Parliament is "illegal," and they point to an undeviating custom or practice for nearly 250 years by which the more authentic changes have been effected by one or other of these ways, and allege that a change in other mode is merely an alias, which no one is compelled to recognize, and they seek to prove that it is now part of the Common Law that changes by Royal Licences are the only lawful means by which alteration of name can be effected. The other view is that a man is at liberty to change his name when and as often as he pleases, that what a man's name may be is but a question of fact. Further, that it is "lawful" for anyone to do any act which is not explicitly forbidden by Statute or Common Law, and that a practice arising within the last two or three hundred years cannot create a Common Law prerogative of the Crown, restraining and making illegal what certainly was a common practice in ancient times.

The courts will not restrain the use of another name, unless in such cases as those in which fraud is intended or commercial loss will be caused to the person whose name is assumed, and those cases belonging rather to matters of commercial law. This point was decided in the case of Du Boulay v. Du Boulay (L.R., 2 P.C., p. 430). The plaintiff was the son of a mulatto slave woman known only as Rose, who, on being emancipated, assumed her master's surname, as did her son, who started business in the isle of St. Lucia in that name. In 1867 the Du Boulay family took proceedings in St. Lucia to restrain the defendant, who was not related to them, from using their name. The matter went on appeal to the Privy Council, when, on dismissing the appeal, Lord Chelmsford said :—

“ The mere assumption of a name which is the patronymic of a family, by a stranger who had never before been called by that name, whatever cause of annoyance it may be to the family, is a grievance for which our law affords no remedy.”

And this may, in principle, be regarded as confirmed in Lady Cowley's case, already referred to, although that related rather to the assumption of a title than a surname.

The practice of obtaining a Royal Licence has been in existence since the reign of Charles II, and the necessity of obtaining the Royal assent is specifically referred to in the King's warrant, dated 6 July, 1679, which empowered the Earl of Ogle, who was the son and heir of the Duke of Newcastle, upon his marriage, to assume and take the surname of Percie and to bear the arms of Percie quarterly with his own paternal arms, “ neither of which may regularly be done, according to the law of armes, without the special dispensacon and licence of Us, as We are by Our supream power and prerogative the onely Fountain of Honour.”

This prerogative of the Crown has been continuously asserted to the present time. It is an advantage that there should exist some authority dealing with the question of changes of name and a guarantee that the change made is effected for a sufficient reason and not a matter of passing whim, and those who wish to change their surnames will be well advised if they adopt the formal and regular process instead of a mere advertisement or deed poll.

The disadvantage of a mere voluntary change is that there exists no means by which its recognition by others can be enforced, while in certain official circles it will be entirely ignored. The better course to follow where a change has to be effected is to adopt the more effectual, if more expensive, method of a Royal Licence, under which no question can arise as to the legality of the change so made.

The following is the procedure usually adopted upon making a change of name by means of a Royal Licence. A petition to the Crown is prepared and presented through the Heralds' Office, and, as the terms of this petition, if granted, will govern the terms of the Royal Licence, the solicitor of the applicant should prepare it in conference with the Officer of Arms. This is especially important in cases of voluntary application, as the Officer will be able to advise whether it is one likely to be granted.

When granted, the Royal Licence is given under the actual Sign Manual and Privy Seal of the Sovereign, and is countersigned by the Secretary of State for the Home Department. For a voluntary application the Stamp Duty is £10. For a change made by direction of a will or settlement the Stamp Duty is increased to £50. This large extra charge of £40 may in some cases be avoided if the person who expects to have to change his name does so under a voluntary application before the time at which it becomes compulsory to do so under the will or settlement. There is, however, no obligation on the Home Office, to whom the Office of Arms refers such petition, to advise the Sovereign to grant the prayer of the petition.

When the petition is made pursuant to some will or settlement the practice is for a licence to be granted as a matter of course. In other cases the applicant must show good and sufficient reasons for the proposed change. It is not possible in what is a matter of grace to set out any definite rule as to what constitutes good and sufficient reason. When the applicant has no connection with the family whose name he proposes to assume and wishes to do so from mere whim or caprice, his application will almost certainly be refused.

The petition will usually be granted if the applicant is the representative of a male of that family or when he can show that some ancestor through whom he claims similarly represented the family whose name he wishes to take.

A ward will be permitted to take his guardian's name if the application be made in the latter's lifetime. And a licence will be given to assume some obsolete spelling or the use of a prefix such as de, provided descent be proved from an ancestor thus writing his name. And a natural child will be allowed to assume his father's surname, provided it be done with his consent.

The petition will be couched in the following words and should be engrossed upon foolscap paper :—

To the King's most excellent Majesty.

The humble petition of [John Smith, of Blackacre, in the county of Blank, gentleman.]
Sheweth

That your petitioner is [then set out the facts of the pedigree or other reasons justifying the application for a licence.]

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays your Majesty's Royal Licence and Authority that he and his issue may take and henceforth use the surname of [Brown in lieu and instead of Smith.]

And your Majesty's petitioner shall [etc.].

(Signed) JOHN SMITH.

The above represents a petition of the simplest class, but it is obvious that as the circumstances and facts of every case vary, the document will have to be prepared by the petitioner's solicitor in conjunction with the Officer of Arms, who forwards it to the Home Office.

It may, however, be noted that the prayer of the petition must be carefully worded as the Licence to be subsequently granted will follow its terms with precision. If therefore in the case above the petitioner desires to be known as Smith-Brown he will ask that "he may take and henceforth use the surname of Brown in addition to and after that of Smith."

The petition may also ask to use arms for the adopted name, but this part of the subject concerns the subject of the law of grants of arms rather than changes of name. It may be noted that if the applicant is in a position of life to use arms and does not already possess that distinction, such an occasion is a suitable one for obtaining a grant of arms.

The licence, if granted, will be prepared at the Home Office and will be in the following form:—

(Signed) VICTORIA R.

[Seal.] Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, To Our Right Trusty and Right Entirely Beloved Cousin Henry Duke of Norfolk, Earl [Stamp, Marshal of England and Hereditary Marshal of £10.] England. Greeting! Whereas John Smith, of Blackacre, in the County of Blank, Gentleman, hath by his petition humbly represented to Us that [here are set out the reasons justifying the change].

The Petitioner therefore most humbly prays Our Royal Licence and Authority that he and his issue may take and henceforth use the surname of Brown in lieu and instead of that of Smith. Know ye that We of Our Princely Grace and Special favour have given and Granted and do by these presents give and grant unto him the said John Smith Our Royal Licence and Authority that he and his issue may take and henceforth use the surname of Brown in lieu and instead of that of Smith, Provided that this Our Concession and Declaration be recorded in Our College of Arms, otherwise this Our Licence and Permission to be void and of none effect.

Our Will and Pleasure therefore is that you, Henry Duke of Norfolk, to whom the cognizance of matters of this nature doth properly belong, do require and command that this Our Concession and Declaration be recorded in Our College of Arms to the end that Our Officers of Arms and all others upon occasion may take full notice and have full knowledge thereof. And for so doing this shall be your Warrant.

Given at our Court of Saint James the Twenty-first day of May, 1873, in the Thirty-sixth year of Our Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command.

(Signed) H. A. BRUCE.

Recorded in the College of Arms, London, pursuant to a Warrant from the Earl Marshal of England.

(Signed) GEORGE HARRISON,
Windsor Herald.

At the foot of the first page will be the following note :—

John Smith, Licence that he and his issue may take and use the surname of Brown in lieu and instead of that of Smith.

The London Gazette advertisement will be in the following form and that in the Dublin Gazette will be similar. It is not requisite to advertize the change in either Gazette though such is the usual practice. In the case of Irish changes the fact is sometimes notified in both Gazettes :—

Whitehall, 1 January, 1905.

The King has been pleased to grant unto John Smith, of Blackacre, in the county of Blank, Gentleman, his Royal Licence and Authority that he and his issue may henceforth use the name [and arms] of Brown in lieu and instead of that of Smith.

And to Command that the said Royal Licence and Authority be recorded in his Majesty's College of Arms, otherwise to be void and of none effect.

Certain fees and stamp duty must be paid by the applicant in advance and these are fixed according to the following invariable scales :—

These fees in England are :—	£	s.	d.
To the Heralds' Office for preparing and presenting Petition.
Reporting officially on the case to the Home Secretary, obtaining the Earl Marshall's Warrant, and recording the Royal Licence in the books of the College	34	10	6
Stamp Duty payable to the Inland Revenue :
If a voluntary application	10	0	0
If a compulsory one under a clause in a will or settlement	50	0	0
Exchequer fee	10	2	6
If a grant of arms be made at the same time, fees to Heralds' College*	66	10	0
If the change of name be advertized in the London Gazette , as usually is done, a fee varying with length of the advertisement, including copies of the Gazette , about	2	2	0

The fees taken in Ireland upon a change of name are :—

Change of name by Royal Licence on a Voluntary application, together with a grant of arms	120	0	0
The like under a will or settlement	160	0	0
Change of name upon a voluntary application	60	0	0

Further, as the applicant will rarely carry through the business himself, but will find it requisite to obtain the aid of a solicitor experienced in such matters, there will usually be certain legal charges in addition to the official fees mentioned above.

It may be noted that a Royal Licence to change or to assume a surname is merely permissive. The change must be made by the licensee himself. It is perhaps a matter for surprise that the Crown instead of granting a mere licence has not adopted the method of making an actual grant of the name, just as it does in the case of granting a coat of arms. This process was actually adopted in the case of the Ross family, one of whom had distinguished himself at the battle of Bladensberg, and in 1816 the Crown granted and ordained that the widow of General Ross and his descendants should thenceforth be called "Ross of Bladensberg," and this family has since been known by the unusual style of Ross of Bladensberg.

The Lyon Office Act in Scotland, 1672, declares "that it is only allowed for noblemen and bishops to subscribe by their titles. And that all others shall subscribe their christened names or the initial letter thereof with their surnames, and may if they please adject the designation of their lands, prefixing the word 'Of' to the saids designations." From this is derived the practice, well known in Scotland, of landowners adding the name of the property of which they chance to be "laird." Thus John Graham, who owns Redford, will be known as John Graham of Redford; his tenant will be known as John Williamson in Redford. And this distinction is still carefully observed in Scottish legal documents.

The practice of Peers signing themselves by their titles only seems in England to rest upon custom and it may be noted that anciently it was not unusual for peers to prefix their Christian name to their signatures, though when that practice fell wholly into disuse it would not be easy to say. English Bishops still sign with the initial of their Christian name, though they are in Scotland, by the Act just referred to, on an equality with the hereditary peers in that respect.

The practice of change by Royal Licence has never obtained to any extent in Scotland, as in that country it has always been held sufficient to register arms under the new name.

Changes of name purporting to be made by deed poll or advertisement derive no additional force or validity from the adoption of either of these methods. The advertisements in such cases need not follow any particular form and indeed they vary so much that it seems scarcely worth while to give an example, but should it be thought well to attempt to effect a change in this way the advertisement may adopt some such form as this:—

I, John Smith, of Blank, in the County of Blank, gentleman, do hereby give notice that I have assumed and intend henceforth upon all occasions to sign and use and to be called and known by the surname of Green only, in lieu of my present surname of Smith, and that such intended change of name is formally declared and evidenced by a deed poll under my hand and seal bearing date this day and intended to be forthwith enrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature. In witness whereof I do hereby sign and subscribe myself by my said intended future name.

Dated, etc.

(Signed) JOHN GREEN.

Witness : John Thompson, of Blank, Solicitor's Clerk.

The deed poll may follow the wording of the advertisement and can then be enrolled in the Central Office. The change thus made derives no validity from either the advertisement or the deed poll, whether enrolled or not, and the only result gained is that of giving publicity to the intended alteration of name.
